

CHANGE THE FUTURE OF YOUR CAREER EARN YOUR MEd AT WGU

Ready to take your career to the next level with a master's degree in education? An online program could be your perfect classroom—here's why.

You can do it on your own time. Online, competency-based learning models let you progress through your master's courses at a pace that's right for you. That means the program measures learning, not class time. You can continue teaching and complete your coursework on weekends from your couch, at night after your kids go to bed, or whenever!

You'll get fresh ideas. Working on your professional development is definitely good for your career. But it's also a huge benefit for your current students, since you'll be excited to bring the skills and techniques you're learning in your master's program straight to your classroom.

It's collaborative. Even though you're not in a physical classroom, you won't be alone. At Western Governors University, you'll get to know faculty through mentorship and instruction, work with other students, and stay connected.

It's super affordable. As a nonprofit university, WGU believes that advanced degree programs shouldn't break the bank. Tuition is just $6,480* a year no matter how many courses you complete.

95%
of graduates said they would attend
WGU again.

2018 GALLUP POLL

MEET AN ALUM

Anita Franklin, 44
Maryville, Tennessee
MEd Instructional Design
WGU, 2015

I decided to go back to school after I landed my dream job as an instructional special education coach for a school district. I had been teaching and coaching for 21 years, but I wanted to feel more confident in this new role.

I chose WGU's program because I had supervised a student teacher from WGU who was brilliantly prepared—I was impressed. Also, I liked that it was so affordable and convenient for my schedule. Because I was in charge of how quickly I progressed, I was motivated to persevere.

Each class allowed me to tailor my assignments to my current job, making every class relevant. I never once felt alone—I was given a great mentor who called me weekly, and my professors were very accessible.

Getting my MEd was the best thing I've ever done for myself professionally.

Photos: Bottom left, © www.gettyimages.com; above courtesy of Anita Franklin.

Western Governors University offers accredited online master's degree programs for educators in specialties such as Learning and Technology, Instructional Design, Science Education, and Educational Leadership.

*Tuition rate as of April 1, 2019. Rates are subject to change.