Q&A:

Q: Student lacked mentorship for a long time and when seeking mentorship from other ethnicities, my son was reluctant to open up and trust them. Is there a resource for parents to get mentorship for young boys that can pour into them?

A: Part of the RFP process. We are working with the district to get those resources readily available to students. Dr. Rogers also informed her the FRC can provide resources and one of our Family Engagement Specialists will reach out to her to help her build her village.

Q: Do we have any intentional mentors available right now in the District that can step in and provide meaningful support?

A: My Brother's Keeper is an organization.

10.3 Public Questions & Comments

C: Reggie - I would like to know what all you guys do here. because so far it seems like people have to wait for help instead of help like the young lady who asked her question about mentorship. We can come together for all these things and different people being announced but it really seems like nothing is being done.

Q: What do you need?

C: We all have separate problems and usually if it's a site problem, you take it over here. I thought this was going to be more of a place where solutions are offered for individual problems but we'll never know because we are separated to deal with problems. So how can we get solutions if we are all separated.

A: If you have a situation that you need handled specifically to you or your child, we can help you with that. If you want to mobilize and connect with other parents at your school site or within our committee, you can become a member so that we can connect that way.

C: Yeah, you guys aren't really selling your package.

Point of Order: That was your second comment.

Point of Order: Back to the meeting norms which states everyone get 2 minutes per comment. I understand you stated a very broad statement that makes it difficult to answer directly. Your issue may not be at this committee. This is not a divisive committee and there are certain rules that you abide by. I am the Vice-Chair but also running as Parliamentarian as well. So when I say a Point of Order and relay that you get 2 minutes, it is not a back and forth conversation because this is a district committee and we are working for all the students in the District.

C: I don't see division. I see this PAC coming together and working to move things forward. This is a step towards building my village. I find that I can get resources to help bring up successful students.

C: Jeanice: Thank you AABPAC and everyone who participated in the RFP process. I know that it would not have been possible without the work you all have done. Progress is coming but it takes time. I am excited to see the new programs coming to our district.

C: Monique - I always love this committee. It is one of my favorite committees. Please reach out to other Black families.
